Ballet BC's Romeo + Juliet Puts a Modern Spin on Shakespeare's Classic Royal Theatre, March 13 + 14, 7:30 pm

VICTORIA, B.C. – There's a contemporary familiarity to Ballet BC's Romeo + Juliet created by French choreographer Medhi Walerski set to Prokofiev's 1935 score. Walerski is known for making cutting-edge works for major international dance companies including Nederlands Dans Theater where he performed and choreographed for more than a decade. In recent exciting news, Walerski was appointed Ballet BC's new Artistic Director effective July 2020, when he succeeds Emily Molnar who will become Artistic Director of Nederlands Dans Theater (NDT).

Martha Schabas of The Globe and Mail states that Romeo + Juliet is "Mr. Walerski at his most visionary." His version of Shakespeare's star-crossed lovers will feel familiar to audiences, but the contemporary ballet production offers a fresh and thought-provoking retelling of the classic that profoundly resonates today.

The production's contemporary aesthetic is further enhanced by Dutch set and lighting designer Theun Mosk who creates a stark black and white colour scheme with giant geometric shapes that the dancers move in and around, as well as creative use of light and shadows.

Walerski's Elizabethan inspired costumes mixed with modern dress further lends timelessness to the work. In an interview with The Georgia Straight, the choreographer explains, "I wanted something pure, something universal, so that you could connect with the emotions and feelings and psychology of the characters, more than being in Italy or Renaissance time. I got inspired as well with the Elizabethan aesthetic—I just use it as just a flavour. I designed the costumes, and they are contemporary, but they have just a hint of the Elizabethan—the high collars, and the men have these little doublets."

Dance Victoria contributed $25,000 towards Ballet BC's commission of the creation of Romeo + Juliet through its Crystal Dance Fund. The funds supported inclusion of Arts Umbrella graduate dance students, increasing the number of the corps de ballet in the production. Later this year, the Company will tour the production to Australia's Sydney Opera House for seven performances.

The community is invited to a free, pre-show chat at 6:45 pm in the West (Blanshard Street) Lobby of the Royal Theatre prior to both performances.
